To the Selection Committee,

Thank you for this opportunity to apply for this public art project for Veterans Memorial Park. I am excited about this project because I feel my work and expertise can greatly benefit this project.

I am a traditional representational figure sculptor. Bronze will be a great material for this project as it is strong and durable and lasts well in any kind of weather. It is also a classic material for public statues.

I have experience with several Public Works as evidenced in my resume; I have also been a finalist for various public art sculpture projects and have experience creating in depth proposals for various projects, which include making renderings and scale models, as well as itemized budgets. My experience in public art has allowed me to create art for specific locations including Libraries, Schools, Parks, City Halls, Fire Stations, and Police Stations, and Roundabouts.

An educator at heart, I make it a point to include an educational element to every public work I undertake. If chosen for this project I wish to visit local high school classes and talk to them about the project to raise awareness and inspire future makers and patrons of art.

I am eager to use my experience and expertise to create a proposal and ultimately execute this project and see my proposal become a reality. Thank you for taking the time to consider my application. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Public Art Projects List

Although I have not yet completed any projects over $125,000, I am currently working on one with a budget of $166,000 for Mountainland Technical College. I have been a finalist for projects over $125,000 and some projects I have done in years past I would say would not be worth $125,000 or more if I were to do them today.

Community Engagement.

My favorite community engagement is visiting the local high school when I install the piece. I always show them a timelapse video of the creation process and talk about everything that went into the piece. I have even gone as far to do online video chats with the classes in my studio, so the students can see the process and ask questions as the sculpture is being created. I love to inspire young students and show them one of the many career paths in art, and help them appreciate the art around them.

Another great community engagement project I did was for my sculpture "Pillars of Ashton". For this piece I held an activity at the local public library where people from the town old and young could sculpt a small relief sculpture of something that they loved about Ashton. These sculptures were incorporated into the finished sculpt and bronzed. In this way the sculpture quickly became part of the community and the residents of Ashton really felt an immediate ownership for the piece.

DANIEL BORUP
SCULPTOR

The Nationally Recognized Sculptor, Daniel Borup, grew up in the small town of Meridian, Idaho, where he learned to love art from his older siblings. Daniel's passion for art only grew when he went to college. This is where Daniel was introduced to figure sculpting. He instantly fell in love with sculpting and hasn't put down his sculpting tools since. Years of work and development has awarded Daniel with honors and awards as well as the honor of creating public art sculptures and memorials for various locations throughout the country. Daniel now lives in the quiet rural town of Shelley, Idaho with his beautiful wife and three daughters. In addition to sculpting, Daniel loves to teach art and help others cultivate their own creative skills. Much of the work Daniel creates is inspired by the relationships he has with his family and students.
